

Port Chilkoot Distillery

Located in the historical Port Chilkoot area of Haines in Southeast Alaska, Port Chilkoot Distillery is an artisanal micro-distillery owned and operated by husband-and-wife team Sean Copeland and Heather Shade. Committed to harvesting from the land, creating quality goods, and following their dreams in a place that can be wild and unpredictable, Port Chilkoot Distillery crafts fine spirits and whiskey that harness and celebrate the Alaskan way of life.

Our Spirits

Some say Alaska's too big to bottle. But our small-batch, artisanal spirits, crafted in Southeast Alaska's first distillery, capture the flavor and feel of the Last Frontier. Our spirits taste like nothing else, because they come from a place like nowhere else.

50 FATHOMS GIN

London dry. Alaska delicious.

50 Fathoms is a classically crafted gin with a sprucy, Southeast Alaskan twist. Taste why discerning sippers give it the gold.

So good, the judges made it a double.

How do you earn a double gold medal at the San Francisco World Spirits Competition? Combine the best of Old World gin-craft with flavors that are pure Southeast Alaska. At our small distillery in Haines, we distill 50 Fathoms in the painstaking London Dry style and make it our own with hand-harvested local spruce tips, whole juniper berries, cinnamon, coriander, and, for a distinctive finish, fresh tangerines. The result is a bold-yet-balanced gin that is both delightfully complex and deliciously accessible. Said one Travel + Leisure editor, "I know what gin is supposed to taste like now."

BOATWRIGHT BURBON

The rain in Haines...means standout bourbon.

Taste how obsessive finessing—and a few barometer swings—make Boatwright Bourbon as exceptional as the place it comes from.

When the clouds roll in, so does the flavor.

When you craft Alaska's only bourbon made from scratch, you mind the details. That's why we start simple, with pure local water, organic, non-GMO grains we mill ourselves, and yeast. Then we double-distill in a copper kettle, fussing until it's right. As our bourbon ages, something very Southeast Alaskan happens: our barrels contract and expand along with our region's frequent barometric swings, absorbing and releasing the bourbon in the process. Result? Nuance, depth, and flavor so distinctive, they're like a postcard from Haines.

- Aged two years in charred Kentucky White Oak
- Double-distilled in a specially designed copper kettle
- Alaska's only bourbon made from scratch

WRACK LINE RYE

Go with the grain.

Wrack Line Rye is a little bit dry and a little bit spicy, 70 percent rye and 100 percent Alaskan.

This is why people love rye.

Rye has been rediscovered. So, for your discovery, we submit Wrack Line Rye. With a mash bill of 70 percent rye we mill ourselves, Wrack Line Rye has enough rye character and spice to announce its presence, yet is balanced enough to play well with others in a cocktail. Made entirely from scratch at our distillery in Haines, it's double-distilled and aged in charred oak barrels. It's a bit drier than our Boatwright Bourbon, making it the perfect go-to for a Sazerac or an Old Fashioned; whiskey-lovers will find plenty to savor when they drink it all by itself.

- 70 percent hand-milled rye
- Aged in charred Kentucky White Oak
